SHENANDOAH CABINETS® ANNOUNCES NEW COLORS FOR SUMMER ON ITS POPULAR MCKINLEY™ COLLECTION

Butterscotch and Cream Glazes on a Maple Cabinet Give Homeowners the Ability to Create a Custom Look at an Affordable Price

DES MOINES, Iowa (June 21, 2006) – The saying “if the shoe fits, buy it in every color,” can be applied to more than just footwear. Cabinet manufacturers such as Shenandoah Cabinetry® are now offering increased colors on their best selling door styles. Available exclusively at Lowe’s beginning August 1, Shenandoah is introducing new optional Butterscotch and Cream glazes painted on its McKinley™ Maple door, providing homeowners with a high standard of luxury at an affordable price.

Shenandoah’s new glazes applied to the off-white painted door offer a premium finish that is flexible enough to be used in a casual or upscale setting. The color is painted on the Maple door and enriched with a warm butterscotch glaze or a soft cream glaze that accentuates the details of the Mitered construction. Using Shenandoah’s “Triple Wipe” process to pull all excess glaze off of the flat surface, the colors highlight the old world craftsmanship and quality of the door.

“There has been a movement toward mixing textures and finishes to achieve a visually appealing, eclectic look,” says Connie Edwards, director of design, Shenandoah Cabinetry. “The new Butterscotch and Cream glazes on the Maple wood, work well with other wood species and finishes to create a custom look that reflects homeowners’ lifestyles and tastes. It’s a soft, elegant look that blends well with just about any home décor and can be achieved without burning a hole in consumers’ wallets.”
